

The Bardwell Press is an independent publisher of academic books based in Oxford, UK. It specialises in books in the social sciences and in particular in bringing the work of European social theorists and researchers to a wider English-speaking audience, especially through its two major series: the GEMAS Studies in Social Analysis and the European Studies in Social Theory series.

New and Recent Titles

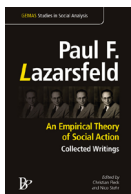

The Challenge of Indigenous Peoples: Spectacle or Politics?

By Barbara Glowczewski and Rosita Henry

Jun. 2011, £90.00, hardback, 300pp, ISBN: 978-1-905622-26-9
Jun. 2011, £90.00, ebook, ISBN: 978-1-905622-40-5

This book is concerned with the ways in which Indigenous peoples express their cultural and social identities in art and politics. Based on field research and practical initiatives with Indigenous peoples in Australia, Oceania, Asia and Siberia, it provides chapters on contemporary creative and political practices.

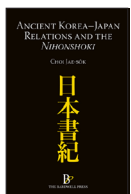

Paul F. Lazarsfeld, An Empirical Theory of Social Action - Collected Writings

Edited by Christian Fleck & Nico Stehr

GEMAS Studies in Social Analysis
Mar. 2011, £150.00, hardback, 512pp, ISBN: 978-1-905622-22-1

The articles collected together in this book demonstrate that many of Paul Lazarsfeld's influential intellectual and methodological concerns that were to shape the direction of sociology as a discipline in the United States were already evident in his early writings, many of which are published here for the first time in English. Accompanied by a detailed and illuminating biographical introduction by the editors, this collection is an important contribution to the history of sociology in the 20th century.

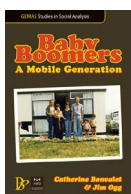

Ancient Korea-Japan Relations and the Nihonshoki

By Choi Jae-sök

Mar. 2011, £90.00, Hardback, 320pp, ISBN: 978-1-905622-10-8

This book represents the distillation of 15 years of research by Choi Jae-sök into ancient Korea-Japan relations. The author analyses nineteen elements of the Nihonshoki, which, as he asserts, is more than a history of ancient Japan, it is also a history of ancient Korea-Japan relations.

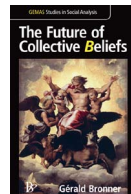

Baby Boomers: A Mobile Generation

By Catherine Bonvalet & Jim Ogg

GEMAS Studies in Social Analysis
Feb. 2011, £24.99, paperback, 254pp, ISBN: 978-1-905622-39-9
Feb. 2011, £65.00, hardback, 254pp, ISBN: 978-1-905622-33-7

Through the use of survey data and qualitative interviews with baby boomers living in London and Paris, the authors demonstrate the diversity of the boomer generation - most notably in terms of housing experiences but equally in areas such as work and consumption. The contrasting experiences within the two cities studied provide evidence that is at odds with the commonly accepted view that baby boomers are culturally dominant and have a monopoly of financial wealth.

The Future of Collective Beliefs

By Gérald Bronner

GEMAS Studies in Social Analysis
Jan. 2011, £65.00, hardback, 200pp, ISBN: 978-1-905622-35-1

In this book on the sociology of beliefs, Gérald Bronner examines the social processes that perpetuate all types of strange and erroneous ideas. Using models based on cognitive science, he explores the weird and wonderful domain of the "market for ideas". Although we may think that scientific progress roots out the seeds of false belief, Bronner unlocks the answer to why the advance of reason opens up new terrains on which the weeds of error can flourish.

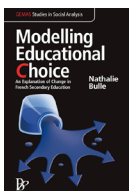

New Europe: Growth to Limits?

Edited by Sven Eliaeson & Nadezhda Georgieva

GEMAS Studies in Social Analysis
Aug. 2010, £125.00, hardback, 468pp, ISBN: 978-1-905622-27-6

How far can the European Union be extended geographically? How far, too, can the four freedoms and the single market be developed? What are the limits to multi-level governance? What, beyond liberal democracy and a market economy, does the union stand for? On these and other questions this book's twenty plus contributions offer readers rich food for thought.

Modelling Educational Choice: An Explanation of Change in French Secondary Education

By Nathalie Bulle

GEMAS Studies in Social Analysis
May 2010, £50.00, hardback, 154pp, ISBN: 978-1-905622-36-8

In this rigorous study of French secondary education during the 20th century, Nathalie Bulle provides a simulation of how pupils and their families chose amongst the streams of study available to them. Her research supports the thesis of the relative autonomy of the educational system in relation to other sub-systems of society, and is a major contribution to the sociology of education.

Raymond Boudon: A Life in Sociology - Essays in Honour of Raymond Boudon

Edited by Mohamed Cherkaoui & Peter Hamilton

Oct. 2009, £525.00, 4 volumes, Hardback in slipcase, 1624pp, ISBN: 978-1-905622-18-4

This Festschrift has been prepared to celebrate the life and work of Raymond Boudon. It provides 83 articles by a cross-section of the world's leading sociologists, social scientists and philosophers who offer analytical essays that explore and evaluate aspects of his many contributions to the understanding of contemporary society.
