SEXUALITY IN FRANCE PRACTICES, GENDER & HEALTH

Edited by
Nathalie Bajos
& Michel Bozon

Research coordinated by *Nathalie Beltze*r

This book presents the most recent and comprehensive scientific study of the sexual behaviour and attitudes of the French. Published for the first time in English, the work is based on a major research survey conducted in 2006–7 with 12,000 participants, and supported by the main social research and health agencies in France.

The results of the study are described in full and analysed according to the key issues concerning variations in sexual behaviour and attitudes and their consequences for the sexual health of the French population. The book provides detailed information on and analysis of the changing practices in sexual relations for all sections of French society. It offers an authoritative account of age and gender differences that influence sexual behaviour and attitudes, and a comprehensive discussion of issues relating to heterosexual and homosexual practices, sexual dysfunction, and the dichotomy between emotions and sexual urges in the representation of sexuality.

The findings of this important study paint a fascinating picture of the evolution of attitudes, behaviours, sexual practices and health issues in contemporary France.

A major contribution to knowledge about sexual attitudes and behaviour, the work provides important information of concern to social scientists, health professionals and social workers alike, and to all those interested in a better understanding of contemporary sexual life.
